CLAIM 250,000 R. R. SHOPMEN OUT

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—A national conference of striking railway shopmen has been called for Thursday and announcement made today that no answer would be made from the Chicago district to President Wilson's appeal to the men to return to work pending settlement of their demand for wage increases.

In the meantime, a committee representing all locals of this district involved in the strike is awaiting word from Washington before starting for that city for a conference with Railway Director Hines. Former Senator J. Hamilton Lewis is reported trying to arrange for a conference between Director Hines and the committee.

Denying reports that the men in the Chicago district are returning to work in response to President Wilson's appeal, the Chicago district council sent the following telegram to 299 cities where workmen are out:

"Ignore reports Chicago men are back to work. We stand by our original demands."

Union leaders declared today that the number of men now out totaled 250,000. Of these 25,000 are from the Chicago district.

Patrick Hadden, president of the carmen's local announced that carmen who previous to the strike had been working on mail cars had been permitted to return to work.

Reports were received at union headquarters that the strike was spreading in the southeastern district.

Railway officials have stated that the strike is waning and announced the receipt of many reports from points in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Georgia and other mid-west points of men returning to work.

But one change in the schedule of trains running out of Chicago was reported today. One engine train was taken from the Chesapeake and Ohio schedule.

The United States Grain Corporation is prepared to divert from its flour purchases, and to sell and deliver to wholesalers and jobbers straight wheat flour in one hundred and forty pound jute sacks on a basis of ten dollar and twenty-five cents delivered in carload lots, in territory east of the Illinois and Indiana line and east of the Mississippi from Cairo to the Gulf, and in ten dollars delivered in carload lots on track west of that line, but not applying to Pacific coast territory.

Wholesalers and jobbers must in turn, require that the retailer shall not sell at more than one dollar and twenty-five cents additional to the wholesale price in original packages and at a price not higher than seven cents a pound for broken packages of any size.

ANDREW CARNEGIE DEAD AT BERKSHIRE SUMMER RESIDENCE

Short Illness From Bronchial Pneumonia Fatal to Famous Financier --- Was Nearly 84 Years Old.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Lenox, Mass., Aug. 11.—Andrew Carnegie, one of the world's most prominent financiers, steel magnate and philanthropist, died at 7:10 p'clock this morning at his summer home, "Shadow Brook," of bronchial pneumonia. He had been ill but three days and the end was entirely unexpected.

Had Mr. Carnegie lived until November 25 next, he would have been 84 years old. At his bedside at the time of death were Mrs. Carnegie, his private secretary, John Boynton, the family physician and members of his home staff. Mrs. Roswell Miller, his daughter, was not present.

Mr. Carnegie had been enjoying the summer in the Berkshire Hills, spending most of his time at his favorite out door pastime fishing. Three days ago he was stricken with a cold and it rapidly developed into pneumonia. His condition, however, did not become alarming until last night.

News of Mr. Carnegie's illness was not known to those outside the family circle.

Mr. Carnegie was one of the noted "54 trio" summing here, the others being Chauncey M. Depew and Chandler Robbins.

Mr. Carnegie was greatly interested in the management of his estate—Shadow, Brook—but spent much of his time this summer fishing on Lake Mahkonee, bordering his estate.

During the time he spent in Lenox Mr. Carnegie was a regular attendant at the Lenox Congregational Church and it will be in that edifice that funeral services will be held either tomorrow or Wednesday.

WILL NOT SUBMIT BLISS LETTER

President Tells It Contains References To Other Governments General Would Not Want Published—Wilson Knows of No Secret Jap-German Treaty.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 11.—President Wilson, in a communication this afternoon to the senate, declined to submit to the foreign relations committee the text of the letter written to him by General Bliss with reference to the Shantung settlement at the peace conference.

The letter "could not be properly described as one of protest," the president declared, adding that he has received no written protest from any member of the commission with reference to the Shantung settlement. His reason for withholding the communication, he said, was because it was references to other governments which, while proper in a personal letter to the president, he felt General Bliss would not care to have made public. The letter was written by General Bliss in behalf of himself, Secretary of State Lansing and Henry White, the American peace delegates. The communication which was in response to a resolution adopted by the committee, also stated that the president had no knowledge of any secret treaty having been entered into between Japan and Germany.

In answer to the request of the committee for any information in reference to Japan or her peace delegates making an attempt to intimidate the Chinese delegates, the president said he had no such memorandum, or information.

COAST TO COAST WALKER IN TOWN

Frank Fletcher, aged 49 years, arrived in town Saturday night, on his final lap in a walk from New York to San Francisco and return. According to Fletcher he made the journey in six years, seven months and ten days. He is now two months and 24 days ahead of his schedule. Fletcher is not allowed to sleep in a house or use a train, street car, automobile or roller skates. He can only accept money when he gives something in return for it. Until he reached Schenectady on his return, Fletcher had guards with him through every state. The guards were to see that he strictly obeyed the rules. Because of his being ahead of his schedule the guards were taken off at Schenectady.

Why is he walking? When he arrives in New York he says, he is to receive $2,700 from the American Athletic Association. He is now wearing a 3200 pair of shoes, and by the looks of them he will soon need the 3201 pair. This is the second trip to the coast. Fletcher has made. According to Fletcher, he made the first trip with Edward Payson Weston, whose record he now claims to have shattered. COMMITTEE NAMED HERE TO RUN DOWN PROFITEERS

Former County Food Administrator Shafer Complies With Government's Request For Body Representing Merchants, Housewives and Public to Seek Evidence of Unfair Prices.

The hand of the federal government, reaching out in an effort to reduce the high cost of living by curbing and punishing those who are exacting unreasonable profits from consumers of groceries, dry goods, shoes, etc., may be felt soon in Kingston.

Former County Food Administrator William C. Shafer, on Sunday received a telegram from State Food Administrator Treman requesting him to name a committee to inquire as to prices here and to report any cases of profiteering. Mr. Shafer, whose work as food administrator in war time was praised both by his superior officers and local people, at once got to work and already has selected a representative committee which will start operations at once. Their names are expected to be made public in a day or two and will include retailers, a wholesaler, representatives of labor, housewives and the public generally as suggested in Mr. Treman's telegram.

This procedure is for the public good and these men will render a service to the community but little less important than that done voluntarily in war time. They must have co-operation. Mr. Shafer states that he was able to achieve such satisfactory results here during his term of office because he found nearly all the people, including the merchants, ready to work together for the common good. In this campaign to put living costs back where they belong, the same patriotic co-operation is necessary and Mr. Shafer is confident that his committee will be aided wherever possible.

The telegram from Mr. Treman follows:

Ithaca, N. Y., August 9, 1919.

William C. Shafer, Kingston, N. Y.

U. S. Attorney General Palmer requests me to request all former county food administrators of New York state cooperating with remainder of nation in order to secure accurate information relative to charges of profiteering by dealers in necessary commodities to appoint a fair price committee including one retailer, of groceries, one of shoes, one of drygoods, a representative of the producers, one of organized labor, one of housewives, two or three representatives of the public generally, also a wholesaler to investigate the prices of food and ordinary necessities in drygoods and clothing to ascertain cost prices, determined whether fair prices are being charged, reporting through me to the department of justice if prices are exacted in excess of what the committee deem fair prices evidence of hoarding or other violations of food-control act will be submitted to the United States attorney believe you can render in this way valuable service to country in present crisis.

STREET RAILWAY OPERATING AT LOSS UNDER 6-CENT FARE

Big Jump in Operating Expenses More Than Offsets Increased Revenue --- Deficit for Quarter $1,908.

Notwithstanding increased revenues from six-cent fares, the Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company operated at a net loss of $1,908 during the quarter ending June 30, 1919, according to a report submitted by the traction company to the Public Service Commission Second District, State of New York.

For the same period in 1918 there was a net corporate income of $2,565. While the revenue was increased over $7,900 by the 6-cent fare, the operating expenses increased over $12,000 to which fact the deficit may mainly be attributed.

MADE POSSIBLE RELYEA REUNION

Old Dennis Relje was First Settler in Town of Marlborough. More Than 200 Years Ago.
The Hon. C. Meech Woolsey, author with of the History of the Town of Marlborough, contributed the following to The Freeman:
Kingston Freeman:

I see by the paper of August 8th that the Relje family have recently held a re-union, at Forsyth Park. And perhaps the Relje family would be interested to learn more about their original ancestor, who settled in Marlborough. Governor Benjamin Fletcher on September 12, 1694, conveyed to Captain John Evans of the British navy, "All that tract and parcel of land" upon the west side of the Hudson river, beginning from the south side of the land called the Paltz, and extending thence southerly along the said river to the lands belonging to the Indians at the Murderer's Kill (now called Moodney Creek) and extending westward to the foot of the high hills called Pit-kis-ka-ker and Ala-akawosting."

This tract ran from the Paltz purchase on the north, to Murderer's Creek on the south, and bounded on the northwest and west by the Shawangunk mountains. Under the land patent it was required that he should plant families of settlers. He settled Dennis Relje (Reljea) in what is now the town of Marlborough on the stream or creek as you enter Marlborough village from the north and some distance up the stream above the bridge. Reljea was the first settler of the town, and was often spoken of as old Dennis. And the stream on which he lived has always retained the name of Old Man's Kill. We find it so called as far back as 1697. His name appears in the ancient precinct tax roll as Dennis Relje in the years 1714, 1715, 1718. In the tax roll of 1724 and 1725, it appears as Old Dennis. He raised a family and died here.

There was a dispute for a long term of years as to what was the south bounds of the Paltz patent at the river. The north line of the land in dispute is given as "from Jeffrow's Hook to the high hill Mogunk." This was a straight line running from Blue Point to Paltz Point. The other line, the south line, is what is now our north town line. "From a black stump west to the high hill of Mogunk." The Paltz people, to retain possession of this tract, settled Dennis Relje, a son of the old man, upon this disputed territory.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS.

Who Missed Civil Service Exams May Yet Qualify.

Under an opinion of the attorney general recently rendered to the civil service commission, United States soldiers, sailors and marines who missed opportunity to enter civil service examinations because of their military or naval service may now be given a chance to qualify for government employment.

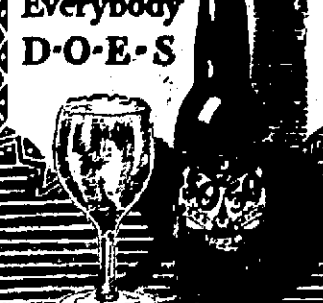

The civil service commission, wishing to give discharged service men every opportunity to qualify for civil positions, asked the attorney general for an opinion as to whether it would be legal to open for the benefit of honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines examinations which had been closed. The attorney general having expressed the opinion that such action is legal in view of the spirit of a recent act of congress which provides for preference in appointment to civil positions for discharged soldiers, sailors and marines, the civil service commission will open only to honorably discharged service men examinations which were pending on April 6, 1917; the date of America's declaration of war, or which were subsequently announced, and for which registers of eligibles now exist.

Sixty days from August 1, 1919, will be allowed soldiers, sailors and marines in which to be examined for positions for which examinations have already been held if they were discharged from the military or naval service prior to August 1, and sixty days from the date of their discharge will be allowed these discharged subsequent to August 1, 1919.

Bank Remodelling Progress.

Much interest is being shown in the reconstruction of the National Ulster County Bank building on the corner of Wall and John streets. Contractor Charles J. Michaud has roofed over the sidewalk on the John street side of the building while the brick work is being torn down so that pedestrians may use the sidewalk without danger of falling bricks. The entire upper wall on the John street side has been removed and the interior work is progressing rapidly. While the reconstruction is going on the bank business is conducted from temporary quarters on Fair street, near John.

"DIRECT BITE TEETH"

After years of experimenting our laboratories have discovered a direct bite set of artificial teeth. These plates improve the sense of taste and insure perfect enunciation and articulation. The teeth absolutely cannot be discerned from natural teeth. These teeth because of the direct bite have three times the biting strength of ordinary plates. Are you now wearing artificial teeth? If so, we strongly advise you to call and investigate this new plate.

CHORUS GIRLS TO HAVE OWN UNION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 11.—The lovely chorus girls, when they get out of bed some time this afternoon, are going to form a branch union all their own and join the actors' strike.

This was the most important bit of news to the average New Yorker that emanated from the headquarters of the Actor's Equity Association, the strikers' organization, today.

The strike developed into a deadlock today with the actors' triumphantly announcing the addition of Al Johnson, "the world's highest priced comedian," John Drew, Ethel Barrymore, Lionel and Jack Barrymore to their ranks and the managers bellowing the statement that Valli Valli, Janet Beacher, Olive Wyndham and other celebrities of the stage had declared their loyalty to the producers.

PERISCOPE MADE HERE.

And Anyone May Have a Look Through It.

Probably every person who has read of the clever device known as the periscope of a submarine, has wished that they could look through one of those periscopes for themselves, if it were not for the accompaniments of warfare which they would have to encounter in order to get that look.

Figuratively speaking, we are now commercially turning our swords into plough shares, or at least converting the modern weapons of warfare into articles of more or less usefulness. Taking note of this fact, and profiting thereby, the L. B. Van Wagenen Company is about to give its patrons the opportunity of looking through a periscope into the depths of their store, and the sights to be seen there will be as much of a surprise to most people as will be the periscope itself.

This clever reproduction of one of the simplest of the real periscopes is the work of our friend Donald Whiston, one of our high school boys, and being exceptionally creditable, this fact will add materially to the interest of all in this live-wire project. As for what one will see, after they have had the look, "dependent saith not," but a good, big surprise is "in store" and one well worth looking at.

This bit of converted war machinery will be on exhibition at the L. B. Van Wagenen store on Friday of this week, August 15th, for the first time, and will remain for the enlightenment of the public, several days. But quite naturally everyone will want to go early to this popular store and avoid the rush of inquisitive and interested customers that is sure to visit the store when the news of what one can see through the periscope gets noised abroad. This much of a hint, however, is given, that what one will see will be something of special interest to men and women and children three hundred and sixty-five days a year, and usually several times a day.

Big Girl for That.

That book was certainly annoying to all, the primary room teacher of the A. school, but her sister from her mouth to discover the cause of this annoyance. One, a bright-faced little girl, seeing the act solemnly asked: "Teacher, how old are you?" "Trying to ignore this impudence she made no answer. With an expression of scorn she said: "I know you're near twenty, and just think! you're making your fingers."

Freedom.

Freedom may come quickly to robes of peace, or after ages of conflict and wars, but come it will, and when it will, as long as the principles by which it was acquired are held sacred.—Edward Everett.

Children of Famous Artist Who Died Sunday Live at Catskill.

In the death of Ralph Albert Blake, the greatest of American landscape painters has passed away. Self-educated, this now recognized genius, for years fought a losing battle with poverty and sometimes almost starvation, so that his mind became unbalanced and he was sent for some years to the Middletown asylum. While at the asylum, he was made a member of the National Academy, in 1913, the greatest honor that can be given an American painter. Through the instrumentality of friends he was released from the asylum in 1914, and it was hoped that under favorable conditions he might eventually realize his one time dream.

His one time dream, however, was never completed. On Sunday morning when the funeral will be held at Grace Church, New York city, as soon as arrangements can be made by the family.

It will be of interest to many Kingstonians to know that the family of this famous American now resides at Catskill, and that a son and daughter have painted pictures which critics say show that they have inherited much of their father's talent.

Blake's most famous painting "Moonlight," which originally sold for $500 was ultimately sold for $20,000. Blake's work received honorary mention at the Paris Exposition in 1900.

Construction of "demountable" rafts or ships is being undertaken in Canada. This announcement has awakened much interest among lumber shippers in this country, some of whom have the same problem to meet that confront the trade in the Dominion. The British timber controller, who is arranging for the milling of large amounts of lumber for the British government at Vancouver, announces that a practical test is about to be made of shipping it to England by way of the Panama canal in a solid mass held together by numerous heavy iron bolts. It is thought quite possible that this experiment will succeed.

For some years there was used on the Pacific coast a wire bound log raft for long-distance towing. In structure it differed very slightly from the proposed demountable craft. The latter is to be much more like a real ship than was its forerunner, drawing nearly eighteen feet of water, with a freeboard nearly half as great. The wire raft was small in comparison, the new contrivance carrying, or more properly speaking, containing, three to five million feet of timber. And everything on board except the engine will be sold in England. The iron rods which will hold the raft together are expected to find a good market there.

There was much trouble at first in placing the engine, for no engine room could be contrived. It was decided to bolt it down to the deck and to leave a hollow space air for fuel, supplies and living quarters for the crew. When the demountable raft arrives in England the engine will be shipped back to British Columbia. The reason for the raft is a lack of tonnage and high freight rates, which have hampered the industry in Canada for years.

Some of the inhabitants of Constanza, a Rumanian city on the Black sea, tasted meat for the first time in two years when a few weeks ago the crew of the U. S. S. Western Plains treated a whole beef and gave it to them, writes J. C. Piper, seaman, in a letter to friends in Louisiana.

Legals at Constanza and other Rumanian seaports visited by the Western Plains were found to be actually starving to death, writes Piper. At Constanza the men employed to help unload the vessel were so weak from hunger they could not work.

While money was plentiful there was no food to be bought, says the writer of Piper to his friends. The Germans trapped the country towns of foodstuffs. Children were dying daily from starvation. "Feeding was an utter impossibility," writes Piper. The Western Plains was at Constanza, N. J., when Piper wrote.

A FINE OLD GERMAN

Unfortunately, the peculiar mental and moral qualities which during the last few years have become inseparably associated with the German character are not confined to the militarists of that country. Professor Ernst Haeckel died Saturday. He never thought out for himself the theory of evolution, but after Darwin had outlined it he endeavored to become its chief exponent. Darwin himself was contented with stating facts which had been proved, never going beyond them. Consequently, he did not claim that he had presented absolute proof of the correctness of the evolutionary theory, but rather had established a strong probability in favor of its validity. But this was not enough for Haeckel's German mind. He was bound to surpass Darwin by hook or crook. So he resorted to what in other countries is considered plain lying. No less an authority than Julius Duesberg, Professor of Anatomy at the University of Liege, Belgium, says:

It is well known, in scientific circles, that Haeckel does not hesitate to distort the facts in order to make them suit his ideas. In his books on the descent of man in relation with his monistic religion, for example, Haeckel simply falsified well-known pictures of embryos, or even invented some of them.

Not only this Belgian scientist, but a considerable number of German anatomists and zoologists, denounced Haeckel as is shown by the Deutsche Medizinische Wochenschrift for 1909. Politicians and some other people frequently resort to trickery, but to Germany belongs the credit of producing the only eminent scientist who ever bolstered up his teachings by fraud.

THE NEW PURITANISM.

A short time ago two respectable and well-behaved young women were arrested in New York and locked up for several days merely because they paused on the street and spoke with two men, one of whom was an old acquaintance. The New York papers now report a similar case, that of an estimable young lady who had gone to that city to be married and who was jailed for several days merely because she rented a room while doing her shopping instead of remaining in a high-priced hotel. Of course, like the other two unfortunate girls, she was triumphantly acquitted after formal examination and the much too pure-minded Vice Squad listened to another tongue-lashing from the court. Similar outrages have been reported from Washington and other cities, the frequency of these crazy performances being attributed to the insistent demand of reformers that supposedly helpless doughboys be protected from vampires.

In former times a policeman exercised ordinary discretion, his practiced eye as a rule readily distinguishing between an innocent young woman and a street vampire. But now he is nervous and precipitate because he knows he is being watched by the agents of people who are so eager to take charge of their neighbors' morals that they continually occupy their minds with evil and therefore see it where it is not. With the new Puritanism striding forward at such a pace, it looks as if the time is near when an innocent girl will hardly dare to speak to a male acquaintance outside of her own home.

According to official estimate at Washington, it appears that only two American divisions now remain in Europe under arms; that since the armistice, less than nine months ago, nearly two millions of men have been brought home and that the present entire strength of all our military forces, both here and abroad, is only 17 per cent of what it was when hostilities ended. That is to say, about six sixths of the great military force we put into the field during the war has been disbanded and the discharged men are resuming their customary peace-time pursuits. Demobilization and transport home have been as great a feat as the mobilization and transportation to Europe of our vast Expeditionary Force in 1917 and 1918, at least in the matter of speed and effectiveness, both being the greatest achievements in these particular fields known to history. Never before have such great numbers of men—over 2,000,000 men—made in accomplish their purpose, and then brought home with such speed and success.

The Albany (Ga.) Argus-News reports that "babbling has become quite popular with the social set." In justice to the set named it will be taken for granted that the hurried editor meant to say "swimming."

GARAGE MEN SEEK PROTECTION

A representative of the Merchants' Legislative League is in Kingston endeavoring to get the signature and support of the local garage men in a movement to secure the enactment of a garage lien law by the legislature. Under the provision of the proposed law a garage owner may attach an automobile as security for a debt contracted for gas, oil or storage.

Under the present laws an automobile cannot be attached after it leaves the garage of the creditor or in other words it is a lien against the owner and not the car. The new bill would make the debt a lien against the machine which could be attached even if it is in a garage in another state.

Several of the garage and supply dealers have signed the petition as they claim that a great deal of money is lost by them in "charge" accounts for gas and oil which they are later unable to collect. The movement being conducted by the league is state wide and a very large number of the dealers and garage men in Kingston are giving it their support and cooperation.

MAY EAT MEAT FRIDAY.

Next Friday, a Holy Day, Exempted For Roman Catholics.

Roman Catholics in the United States will be exempted next Friday from observing the strict rule of the Catholic Church requiring abstinence from meat on Fridays. The exemption is brought about by the fact that Friday is a holy day of obligation, the feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary. This privilege is granted whenever a holy day of obligation falls on Friday.

Up to about nine years ago holy days falling on Friday carried no exemption, but the reigning Pope at the time, Pope Pius X, issued a decree authorizing the use of meat on Fridays which fell on holy days. The present Pope has not seen fit to nullify this decree, with the result that on Friday, August 15, Roman Catholics will be permitted the unusual liberty of eating meat. Announcement of the exemption was made from the altars of all the churches at the Masses Sunday morning.

But Thursday, the eve of the feast of the Assumption, will be a day of fast and abstinence for the faithful.

AMERICA'S IMMORTALS

CHARLES DISALVO, Private, Company B, 354th Infantry.

Private Disalvo (deceased) was decorated for conspicuous gallantry in action near Remonville, France, November 1, 1918. When the combat group, of which he was a member, had been halted by enemy machine guns, Private Disalvo alone charged forward. Attacking the nest, he killed one gunner and forced the rest to surrender. His act enabled the group to continue their advance. During the charge on the nest he was so seriously wounded that he died on the field. His widow lives at 3805 Arlington avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

Eyeless Oysters.

The oyster has a good-sized stomach, which is connected with the mouth by a short gullet; two pairs of gills at breathing, an intestine, a dark green liver, a two-chambered heart and an elementary nervous system, but is minus ears, nose and eyes. It also lacks the footlike appendage that many mollusks possess for the reason that it has no need of an organ of locomotion.

Country's Dark Days.

The saying, "not worth a continental" came from the fact that the continental currency, issued by the continental congress, was worthless, or nearly so, during the revolution and after. As the continental congress had no power to levy taxes it was unable to redeem its promises to pay. Besides, the country was flooded with counterfeit which could not be detected.

Mixing Tobacco.

The mixing of light and dark tobacco is a thing of comparatively recent date. A man from London found his pipe tobacco was nearly exhausted, so he cut up a cake of chewing tobacco and made a mixture. He continued to smoke the blend, and meeting a friend who was in the trade, he gave him a sample, with the result that the first smoking mixture was soon before the public.

Judge Clearwater Warns Against Socialistic Doctrines and Predicts Hot Fight Over Bar Ass'n Report Announcing Judicial Recall.

Judge Clearwater of this city, sends the following to the New York Sun, which was printed this morning:

To the Editor of The Sun—Sir: The war, the treaty of peace, the League of Nations have so absorbed the attention of people east of the Mississippi that comparatively few of them are aware of the subtle as well as open advance of socialism in the vast territory west of that river. Not many lawyers know that the heresy of judicial recall has been written into the constitutions of Arizona, California, Colorado, Kansas and Nevada and came near being made a part of those of Arkansas and North Dakota, or that it has made rapid advance under the forms of constitutional amendment and statutory enactment in other states; that working under these guises it has conspired to state control many private industries, occasionally under the pretence of compensation, but in the majority of cases without that pretence.

The American Bar Association at a coming meeting in Boston in September will receive the report of its committee to oppose judicial recall and the subversive doctrines of socialism. The adoption of the report will be strongly urged and violently opposed, the opposition being precipitated upon the committee's denunciation of socialism under whatever aspect. The committee, which is composed of a representative from each state, territory and dependency of the United States, outspokenly espouses the doctrine of judicial recall and the recall of judicial decisions by popular vote as merely a phase of socialistic propaganda. It contends that the doctrine of Marx openly advocating the abolition of constitutions, the right of property, private control of industrial enterprises, the institution of the family, and the head and glove with the anarchist and the last phase of Bolshevism, the purveyor, socialist, who pretends to shrink from this or that particular doctrine of Marx while advocating the doctrine of Marx, are to use a homely phrase, but soup from the same kettle; that a socialist is a socialist whether he is the apologetic professor of a university begoggled by sentimentality or the paid creature of a regime advocating destruction of civilized government.

The members of the committee have been somewhat startled at the character of letters received from members of the profession who radically disagree with its conclusions and warmly commend this or that feature of socialism as benefiting the age, although admittedly destructive to individual and personal rights and interests. It perhaps may be well for lawyers untainted by this alluring delusion so to arrange their arguments as to permit their attendance at the meeting.

Shot 45 Pound Wildcat.

E. K. Judkins, efficient civil engineer of the Kingston Shipbuilding Corporation, has resumed his duties on the Island Dock after a pleasant four weeks' vacation spent at Gilboa. While away, Mr. Judkins was fortunate enough to shoot a wildcat weighing 45 pounds. He is now having the skin mounted as a souvenir. Mr. Judkins reports that all the resorts in the vicinity of Gilboa and Stamford are filled and that every boarding house is turning away a large number of people.

Medical Defense League Meeting.

An adjourned meeting of the Defense League of the Medical and Allied Professions of Ulster County, will be held at the court house on Wednesday evening, August 13, at 8:30 o'clock. The committee so appointed have by-laws which will be presented at this meeting. All members are urged to be present.

Optimistic Thought.
In the busy walks of life there is no room for a tardy man.

Is Verdict of One Who was At Woodstock Saturday—Seemed Like A Big Happy Family.

The elaborate advertisement of the Maverick Festival which took place at Woodstock Saturday said—"There is only one Maverick Festival in America." This was entirely too modest, it should have read, "The Only Festival of its Kind in the World."

Inferences drawn from that advertisement, picturing what that affair is, may be, or was, are necessarily limited to ones' imagination. It required a personal presence from 2 p. m. to midnight, in fact, actual contact with the affair, to prove that truth is stranger than fiction, or I should have said, that reality can outdo any of the imagination.

The entire program was gone through and a few more numbers that were not on the bill, as for instance, a whole caravan of Gypsy wagons encamped with their whole tribe of Romanies, that at first sight seemed so real as to deceive ones senses and made one think White had arranged with a real band to play a part in the affair. This was one of the surprises.

And what a throng besides—nearly 2,000 people, about half of whom were made up to represent nearly every famous character in fiction and the drama from Shakespeare's time up to those of the latest hit in New York.

And such abandonment and familiarity. It seemed like one huge happy family, for everybody seemed to know everybody else. Humanity was represented in many ways, from the child just learning to toddle to the grey headed doing their second toddling in life. Not "seemings" but "times" were there.

Early in the afternoon automobiles began to roll up in one continuous train and dump their loads of "characters" that brought round after round of applause as they stepped out on the grass and then the autos shot off through a ravine, out of sight, into a 50 acre meadow, which they covered as quickly as bees cover a comb of honey, and such an assortment! From "Ned's" $120 rattle trap to a $12,000 English Rolls-Royce.

Such happiness, smiles, wit, humor. "Say, Chi, if you wear that costume tonight, you'll catch cold." "Chi was a Zulu 'clothed' in nothing but coat of soot, cross bones and a fig leaf made out of old mauling. Chi retorted, "Don't worry, Elizabeth, by that time you'll find me near one of the camp fires."

Just then a perfect Caliban paraded by, arm in arm, with an exquisite creature made up as a ballet dancer that would have made Pauline Pavlova envious. A gray haired lady looking through her lorgnettes remarked, "Isn't she a perfect dream," and her friend said, "Yes, and he is a perfect nightmare."

And so on and on, one could "listen in" without seeming to do so—just as is done on the telephone. I knew nobody there, but a Kingston merchant who has his summer shack among the Woodstockers seemed to know everybody there and what their profession was—but as to names he had aphasia. He said: "There goes a great poet, he writes for the big magazines;" "There goes a singer who gets a thousand dollars a night for singing at the Metropolitan;" "There goes the editor of the Literary Digest;" "There goes a general who has just returned from France;" "There goes a particular friend of Roosevelt—he writes for the Saturday Evening Post;" "There goes a great painter, his pictures sell for awful prices;" "There goes that famous actor who can make a success out of any play no matter how rotten it is," and so on and on and on again ad infinitum.

The "Darnem and Daily" side show was better than anything old Barnum ever handled—and the "Mave" who introduced the monstrosities had Barnum's "shouters" skinned—introducing the snake charmer he said: "She learned her art by first practicing upon men, and gradually worked her self up to snakes, even up to this monster boa constrictor, 50 feet long, which she will now wrap about her body." This she did with the assistance of two other "features." (Op close examination the snake proved to be a fine two inch bore garden hose.)

body." This she did with the assistance of two other "features." (Op close examination the snake proved to be a fine two inch bore garden hose.)

Another of the Darnem features was a South Sea Island maid playing a tom-tom. The Maverick said: "She will now play the great Wagner's opera Parsifal on this simple (idiotic) instrument." And she did, but the clown, who was deaf and dumb, said, "That was only noise. (Side show people are always jealous of each other.) Then, old Maverick said, "Well that's all Wagner is!" and so on and on ad infinitum.

On the athletic field, preparations were going on for a tug of war with a rope—8 or 10 youths were at one end and a Japanese was fastening the other end around his body. The manager said, "Here Shantung, we will give you a few boys to help you." The Jap (who is a hired girl for an artist) being stockily built and having much confidence said in Jap brogue, "No, I can beat 'em all by myself alone." (Hearst take notice of this.)

And the famous Stone Quarry Theater! It would take a page to describe it in detail. Suffice it to say that the sculptors of the colony must have done, their dirty work there, sculpting a full fledged theater, stage and auditorium out of the solid mountain rock.

And the lighting system! There were gasoline lights, kerosene lanterns, fat Woolworth candles for footlights, spot lights which Ned wrenched from his auto, and over all, moonlight—so much apparatus and no light reminds one of the mariner "Water, water everywhere and not a drop to drink." The lighting squad began putting the system to work at 7:45 and by 9 they got it in working order and promptly at 9.01, mountain time, the great show began.

Edison, Burroughs and Ford, those divine triplets, were in that theater last year, while on one of their voyages. Edison promised to install a perfect lighting system, but maybe, in the multiplicity of his duties, he forgot it.

I could not clearly infer the connection between Samuel Maverick, the Texas cattle raser, and the appropriation of his name for this Maverick herd—except probably that every Maverick artist is unbranded, free, belongs to nobody in particular, and therefore to everybody, as all great artists do.

Nothing but art, wealth and leisure combined could do stunts like these only Mavericks can do. Like the great forest where these musicians, painters, poets, sculptors, actors and authors have their mountain homes for the summer, the Woodstock Colony has come to stay and grow and become world-known.

AT THE THEATRES.

Chaplin, Talmadge, Hayakawa to Be Seen Tonight.

"Sunnyside" the comedy that Kingston "movie fans" have been long waiting for is here and will be presented at Keene's for three days starting today with Charlie Chaplin in the role of a "Hired Man," the much imposed upon sale of a hypocritical farmer. In addition to this million dollar comedy Norma Talmadge will be presented in another of her great successes, "The Pronunciation Wife," the story of a girl who is the most popular attraction at a notorious cafe. Norma Talmadge will be presented for two days on the same program with Charlie Chaplin in "Sunnyside."

Sessue Hayakawa, in "The Nan Beneath," at the Auditorium tonight offers a strong drama of powerful personality of the screen in a splendid picturization of Edmund Mitchell's famous book as the Hindu loved the beautiful Scotch lass, but rather than make her a social outcast he suffered in silence. Hearst News weekly and Educational Travelogues are extra attractions tonight. Cyril Scott in "Justice" will be presented at the Auditorium tomorrow. It is a story of politics adapted from the book entitled "Not Guilty."

Coffee—The Delightful Economical Drink

Delicious — always tempting — the flavor and aroma of a cup of good coffee is conducive to good humor, good health and good fellowship.

REYNOLDS RELIANCE has that delectable aroma, that rich, smooth, distinctive flavor that meets with the final approval of the coffee drinker. It is a delicious blend of mellowed coffee scientifically roasted and ground by a special process that removes the bitter chaff.

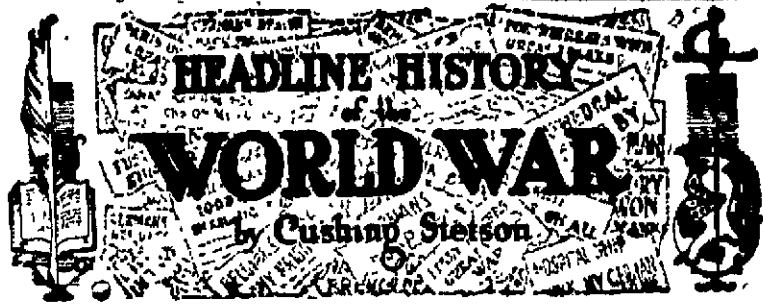

This method of blending, roasting and grinding makes a healthful and absolutely digestible coffee. It also retains all the essential flavor-producing oils. This means less coffee to the cup—more cups to the pound.

Remember to ask for RELIANCE. It is always fresh at your grocers—guaranteed to please or your money back.

ROSENDALE BOY SCOUT MINSTRELS

Rosendale Aug 11.—The boy scouts of Rosendale gave a minstrel performance several nights ago in St Peter's Hall. It was a success, socially and financially, engaging the attention of the village people including the sojourners, whose numbers are unusually large this summer. It was a surprise to find so much home talent had been carefully drilled for some weeks under the skillful supervision of William Ross. Miss Helen Dockstader, as interlocutor, took her part well. "Bones," Billy Ross and Julia Mackerer, "Lambos," Harry Snyder and Agnes McGinn, "Archie," Joe Steeley, Harry Snyder, "Archie," Margaret Kelder, Florence Buckley, Dan Buckley, Arthur Cannon, Joe Hill, William Mackerer, Ed Feasel, Vincent Steeley, Clarence Carney, Jack Cramer. The songs with choruses were well rendered amid much applause. Opening chorus: "I'll Say She Does." Agnes McGinn, "Dear Old Pal," Julia Mackerer, "Sipping Cider," Helen Dockstader, "The Heart of a Fool," Agnes McGinn, "A Good Man is Hard to Find," Billy Ross, "Levee song and dance," The Misses Buckley, Schinnen and McGinn, in their interpretation of the colored belle, were unsurpassed accompanied by Clarence Carney with harmonica, "Bubbles," by Archie Deper, "I'm Dr." by Harry Snyder, "Till We Meet Again," by Joe Steeley. Attention of everyone secured called forth long and loud applause. Billy Ross was just killing from start to finish with his grotesque makeup and witticisms in quick repartee with local hits creating no end of merriment. Part two opened with a soprano solo by Mrs Joseph Mooney, "The Heart of a Rose" sung most charmingly. An exhibition dance was given by Miss Rose McGinn of New York with grace and interpretive skill which called forth much applause. Madame Oettinger of New York, a noted singer, possessing a soprano leggiere voice, sang a group of songs, "Sunrise and You," "The American Came," and "Tis the Rose of Summer" with much skill and charm. Part three was a most amusing speech, "The Blacktown Medical Specialist," Dr Kotch, Archie Deper; Jake, Joe Steeley; Jasper, Harry Snyder, Cough Consumption, William Mackerer; Heart Heartache, Vincent Steeley, Sam Short, Joe Hill; Billy Fitz, Arthur Cannon. The sketch was played with zest, amid roars of laughter by the audience. Refreshments and dancing followed, with fine music by McLain's orchestra. The Rev. J. R. Cameron, scoutmaster, thanks all who assisted and encouraged the boys, who cleared over $55 towards their camp fund, and especially to Miss Dockstader, who worked unceasingly for the entertainment, and Mr. Ross, who trained the young people during his vacation.

Definition of Kindness.

The teacher of the Intermediate room had been trying to teach her pupils the value of many virtues—such as truthfulness, honesty, kindness, etc. To test their knowledge she gave them an examination, asking for definitions for these virtues. One youngster defined kindness in this way: "Kindness is being kind to every human creature from a ant up."

HAINES'S WAGON HIT

And Badly Damaged by Auto Which Sped Away—Number Taken.

Sunday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock the wagon of J. L. Haines, who conducts a roofing business at 707 1/2 Broadway, was struck by an automobile near the Stony Hollow viaduct and badly damaged. Mr. Haines with his sister and little boy were coming toward Kingston when the accident happened, but fortunately none of the occupants of the wagon were injured. The car struck the wagon with sufficient force to demolish it and struck the house tearing off one of the shoes from the animal.

Mr. Haines, who was driving at the time, secured the number of the automobile but the name of the driver could not be learned at the time. When seen by a representative of The Freeman this morning in regard to the accident Mr. Haines said that as he had the number of the car which hit him he would ascertain the name of the driver, but as the number was known the owner would probably settle for the damage without delay.

FISH AND WAYS OF COOKING IT.

Select fish with firm flesh, clear eyes, red gills, scales bright and free from any unpleasant odor. As soon as it is caught or bought it should be sealed, cleaned and well washed. After cleaning place on a large plate in a cool place until it is ready to be cooked.

To broil fish, wipe it carefully, dust well with salt and wrap in a cheese cloth four inches longer than the fish. Place in a kettle of boiling water, and a teaspoonful of salt, a bay leaf, a sprig of parsley, a slice of onion and a bit of celery. Cover the kettle and let it boil summer ten minutes to the pound. Lift out carefully and turn the fish upon a folded napkin on a hot platter. Garnish with slices of lemon and sprigs of parsley and serve with a drawn butter sauce.

Planked Whitefish—this may have a delicious planked fish at home which may be served to perfection. If one has a gas or coal range. Secure a two-inch plank made from hard wood, oak, hickory or maple, a groove running around the plank two inches or less (in from the edge), will hold the pieces from flowing over. Have the fish split down the back and place on a cloth side down on the plank after heating it so that the liquid can be held on the surface upon it. Season the fish with salt and pepper, broil with fork and place in a hot oven to bake thirty minutes. Nothing can be done at this time. When the fish is done, take it from the range and send to the table on the planked fish on a tray or the larger than the planked fish. The longer the plank is used the better the fish is. Place in the fish. Serve the plank to remove any oil and wash and carefully cover it when not in use and it will last for weeks. If one wishes to roast the fish before on open fire the plank may be set up on the board and stand it before the fire.

Tryng Small Fish—The old saying is that "small fish should seldom follow one in water and more in oil."

BELGRADE COMES BACK TO LIFE

Serbian Capital Is Slowly Resuming Business.

SHOWS MANY MARKS OF WAR

For Six Years No Hand Has Been Lifted to Complete Pretentious New Buildings Started Before War—For Four Years City Was in Hands of Enemy—Whole City Shows Sense of Dislocation—Systematic Destruction by Austrians.

By MARY HEATON VORSE.

Belgrade is slowly coming back to life. In the streets which were lined with closed shops, every day a new shutter is pulled up. The peasant women come in again as they did before the war to buy cloth and a silk handkerchief with long fringe for their heads.

To the people who have been here from the first, it is a place full of life, a normal town. But if one arrives as a stranger and is ferried across from Semlin in a steamer full of soldiers, peasants and poultry, a boat piled mast-high with variegated luggage, Belgrade seems a wounded place.

It sits up on a high promontory. Below it in a great curve sweeps the Sava to pour its waters into those of the Danube on its reach down to the sea. There was never a finer place for an imperial city to place itself with the two great rivers circling more than half way around it and the wide fields and the level valley lands stretched out to the horizon. So wide is the river that when it overflows and floods the meadows one has the impression of overlooking the sea.

But Belgrade was never an imperial city. It wanted to be however and put up big ministries of war and built itself a palace for its kings. There was perhaps a time when the street was new and the paint and ornamentation fresh. When Austria sent across her diplomats to intrigue and there was given the illusion of a city of the western world. But it gives no such illusion today.

Idle for Six Years.

War showed it up. War swept over the country and for six years nothing has been done. For six years no hand has been lifted to complete the pretentious new hotels which then were being built, to make repairs or to plaster up the spots where shells have cracked the stucco off the walls. For nearly four of those six years Belgrade was in the hands of the enemy. For weeks it was under shell fire. Here and there is a small house with a crushed roof, a building with a wall knocked in and buildings that have no glass in the windows.

Throughout the whole city there is a sense of dislocation. Life is out of joint. The hotels are full and when one finally locates a room it is miles from the place where a meal can be gotten. Water is brought up stinging to one's room in a small enamel picher. The Austrians in leaving destroyed all of the plumbing of Belgrade—destroyed it systematically. They wrenched the pipes and threw cement and bricks into the drains.

And as the plumbing is so ill of the existence—a little out of plumb, slightly askew. All over the city there is a general air of dilapidation as though the people were still dazed and tired from the repeated wars.

What might be called Main street sweeps up through the center of the town with a grand gesture. It passes by the ministry of war, an ostentatious orange-colored building, and the guarded palace where the last of the Obrenovitch, the king and queen, were stabbed to death by their officers. It is a wide street flanked with cream-colored buildings. On one side it passes two pretentious hotels vaguely oriental in architecture and in color. They never have been finished. War came and put an end to building in Belgrade. The street is well paved and unused car tracks run down it. If Belgrade did not achieve a Parisian air, as it evidently wished to achieve, at least it must have given the illusion before the war of a French provincial town of magnitude. But now the illusion is vanished. In these buildings and in this street especially, the people of the Serbian capital merely betrayed themselves. They confessed that they wished to be of the western world. Here was an expression of the national life. They built in the image of France as much as they knew, but in transit Germany spoiled the purity of the French outline.

Door to the East.

However, everywhere are the old buildings of a former generation. Little one-story or two-and-a-half storyed houses with high pitched red-tiled roofs. There are rows of them, humble and appealing. One comes upon them even in Main street. At present all of the sights of the streets contradict the idea that the West was always here. Here is the door to the East. It is as written in the people's faces. They betray themselves in the manner they stand, the colors they wear.

It has been years since the street cars have been running in Belgrade. The only means of getting around, and the distances are great, is on foot.

LUCKEY, PLATT & CO., POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.

Once off Main street the roads are paved with sharp, uneven cobblestones. Trains of carts rattle slowly through the town from the river to the ware-houses, bringing supplies of precious flour or carrying back the furniture which the Austrians floated down the river on lighters, but which they were never able to unload.

The ovens are white and have wide branching horns. There is a constant flow of them from the steamers on the river bank up the steep hill and from there on down country. They cannot carry much and Serbs need everything. Women wear dresses liberally made of tatters and patch work. Except for some of the better class peasants in their innumerable clothes, there is no one who is not patched.

The illness of Paris is further deepened by the droves of dogs that are herded home every evening. They come toward one squealing and grunting, a scowling at a third, strange looking animal with long curly hair as though a morose sheep had strayed into their family circle at some date.

Red Cross Center.

Occasions constitute the principal traffic, but occasionally a motor ferry of one of the various armies, or a canon of the American Red Cross passes. Belgrade is the Red Cross distributing point for all of northern Serbia. Here are the central warehouses for the Serbian commission. Every day Red Cross workers leave by boat, for remote towns down the Danube or for the interior by narrow-gauge train by cannon or by car. The Red Cross is continually broadening its work and helping villages which are famine-stricken when there is plenty and twenty miles away.

In Belgrade itself the American Red Cross has an orphanage, one of the three of all Serbia, for though Serbia's children are fatherless and motherless, there has not been as yet time to make provision for their care. There are also large Red Cross work-shops where women make the garments which are later given away. The remaining prisoners, groups of whom arrive daily even at this date, are sent to the Red Cross disinfecting station. Fighting trenches have been one of the principal Red Cross tasks in Serbia. If the prisoners and refugees returning through Belgrade are not promptly disinfected they go down into the country and presently a typhus epidemic springs up. It is extremely difficult to make the Serbs understand the necessity of it. "Why all this fuss?" they ask. "Serbs are not afraid to die." Here in a nutshell is the philosophy of the East in matters of sanitation. It seems to the average Serb slightly illogical and decidedly cowardly to pay so much attention to matters of health when the only object is to keep people alive in the world. "Trust in God who knows your appointed day and hour and do not fear death." This is the attitude that the Red Cross must meet.

Belgrade is still under the military. The streets are patrolled by armed soldiers, and when at the request of a Red Cross officer I gave an order to some German prisoners who were moving freight for the Red Cross, an officer came up and told me I must not speak to them, so carefully are things watched.

Soldiers Everywhere.

The streets are full of soldiers. Serbs, French, Czechs-Slovaks, black men from Madagascar, and occasionally an American, and groups of Englishmen. In a courtyard full of pear trees in bloom, one may see a group of grim English naval officers sitting around at ease, a curious peep into England in this half oriental spot. There are a number of English naval officers in Belgrade, come to patrol the Danube in monitors. There are even a few Italians. As one sees them strolling about watching the Serbian soldiers with their box packs on their backs or guarding the endless gangs of prisoners being escorted up and down or unloading the freight on the docks, one wonders how long it will be before they can all go home and begin a normal life again.

At the far end of Main street is a market where peasants come in to sell their wares. The women are small and sturdy and infinitely foreign looking. This is the divide. Here western Europe is left behind. The peasants are dressed in striped home-spun skirts, apron and blouses and have on each side in particular to show their embroidered white linen petticoats. Worked into their purple knitted stockings are great flowers.

They wear short jackets, sometimes of sheepskin, and two handkerchiefs on their heads, one held out from the head in a round wooden ring and fall down the back, and the other over the head. On their feet they wear "gusaks," a sort of sneakers, kept on with thongs wound around the ankle.

Every bit of their costume is beautifully ornamented with embroidery. The men are dressed in homespun wool. Their trousers are wide at the top and they wear their bright colored socks outside of them. The shoes on their feet are like moccasins. Their coats are tight-fitting, very short and braided. They wear Astrakhan caps that finish in a peak.

Crowds of them come up from the river and through the newly opened stores. War has been with them so long, the enemy has been here such a time, that only now are they beginning to breathe again. They seem curiously foreign in this town which tries so hard to relate itself to Europe. What do they know about Europe or the war, those peasants? They go on with their faithful lives, sowing and reaping their crops and rearing children.

In nearly every generation invading armies have destroyed the work of these Serbian peasant men and women. The invaders have killed them, trampled their crops and stolen their animals. Yet war is hardly over before they are back again selling their little diminished stores of things and their spring vegetables, dressed in their gorgeous clothes with their silk handkerchiefs hanging magnificently down their backs. War comes, and destruction with it, but still they weave cloth, and still they embroider dresses.

In the Belgrade orphan asylum of the American Red Cross, children play in the yard without attendants, without direction. One very little boy plays a harmonica and the rest dance the kolo, the national dance. They dance with grave intention, one intricate step after another, both boys and girls.

These children's parents have been killed in the war. The little ones have been under bombardment. They have lived without food. Who knows what terror has been theirs or what memories? Yet there they play in the spring sunshine, the pale stream of young leaves behind them, little children and big ones dancing the kolo together.

Men and women die but the emotions that make a country survive, the sense of a people do not perish, nor do the patterns which they love. These things live; they form a current which carries with it the life of the people. The Red Cross orphanage and the children dancing the kolo to music of their own, in the spring sunshine, is a symbol of the Serbia which suffers, but carries on.

MUST ACT QUICKLY TO SAVE FORESTS

There Has Been Constant Felling of Trees Without Replacement for Years.

Ever since the settlers along the Atlantic seaboard pushed westward through North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky, ever since Daniel Boone felled the trees that went into the first log house in the Blue Grass country the smack of the woodman's ax and the crashing down of hundreds of the forest have made an almost ceaseless refrain in these states, endowed by nature with woodlands of an expanse that seemed limitless. The woodmen, however, are nearing the end of the trail. The forests of North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky, along with the forests of all other states in the East, are rapidly being exhausted. If the cutting out of the forests goes on as it has gone on, and without any provision for the growing of new forests in a surprisingly few years there will be no lumber-producing forests left in the East. This is the statement of officials of the forest service of the United States department of agriculture.

These three states are regarded by forestry service officials as among the most important forested states in the East. They produce great quantities of lumber and other forest products. North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky still have great areas of forest lands.

The exhaustion of forests in these three states is indicated by official government figures of lumber production for 1909 and 1917—the latest year for which they are available. Other reasons why the forests of Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina must be preserved are that "the streams traversing them have their origin in the woodlands and depend upon them for their regular flow."

Optimistic Thought. Taste is pursued at a less expense than fashion.

MOBILE GUNS ON COAST

War Department Planning for Better Defense of Washington.

War department experts have been making a careful study of the defenses of the Chesapeake bay district and the vicinity of Roanoke, Va., for the purpose of putting into service big guns on railway mounts to supplement the fixed fortifications maintained for the defense of the national capital. A number of heavy howitzers and rifles mounted on railway carriages already are available for the new coast defenses. Other units are under consideration and still others will be brought back from France. These include 14-inch and 16-inch weapons.

Coast artillery officers have called a conference of railroad officials whose lines center in Baltimore, Richmond and Wilmington, N. C., regarding the practicability of constructing permanent spurs from the main lines to the coast along Chesapeake bay. Installation of the new batteries for the defense of Washington is said to be the first step in a program to supplement the defenses of both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts with mobile big guns.

FRENCH FILL TRENCHES

Crops of Grains and Vegetables Now Growing on Battlefields.

Trenches and the shell-marked landscape of Belgium and northern France have been filled in with land, and this season's crops are growing on the fields where a year ago the allies and Germans were facing each other in bitter array, according to Mrs. William Draper of the International Red Cross.

Many of the people, said Mrs. Draper, with only a tent or strip of canvas rigged up for a home, have planted vegetable gardens to provide food for this summer and next winter.

Point.

Sarah Bernhardt is credited with having said: "Prettiness does not matter. If a woman has charm and energy, she can secure whatever else she desires—love, success, power." There is a distinction between prettiness and beauty. A stuffy-headed, high-browed and snoring woman may be pretty, but the beautiful woman has to have wholesomeness, cleanliness, gentleness and charm. And the latter is the permanently endowed.

WHO WILL GET
CARNEGIE MONEY?

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 11.—The passing of one of the greatest and certainly the most picturesque of world financiers at his Massachusetts summer home today was followed by much speculation as to what will become of the Carnegie fortune, variously estimated at between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000.

Andrew Carnegie's wife, who was Louise, Whitfield of New York, survives him. He leaves only one child, Margaret, who was married recently to Roswell Miller, a young reserve officer in the United States navy. None of the iron-master's associates professed to know today what provision he made for them in his will, though at the time of the wedding, Margaret Carnegie was called the "world's richest heiress."

AMERICAN LEGION
STATE CONVENTION

The first annual convention of the New York state branch of the American Legion has been called by Odgen L. Mills, state chairman, to meet in the convention hall in Clinton street, Rochester, October 19 and 21.

This will mark the first official meeting of representatives of the half million fighting men of New York state. More than 400 delegates will be eligible to represent their counties and in addition it is expected that several hundred additional service men other than accredited delegates will attend. Speakers are Governor Alfred E. Smith, United States Senator James W. Wadsworth and Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy. The address of welcome will be delivered by the mayor of Rochester and will be responded to by Mr. Mills. Because of the amount of business a minimum of time will be given to entertainment.

There will be nothing to indicate the military rank of the delegates. By the rules military titles shall not be used. No delegates will appear in uniform. Neither will there be a parade although a military band will be present. Each county is entitled to four delegates and four alternates and one additional delegate and one additional alternate for each one thousand paid up memberships. The rate of each county will be equal to the total number of delegates to which that county is entitled. These delegates will be elected at county convention to be held in each county of the state in the week of September 20 to 27.

All inquiries will be attended to if addressed to Wade H. Hayes, state secretary, 140 Nassau street, New York city.

PRICE and QUALITY
Price alone, when applied to an article of merchandise, means nothing. The same hotel offers rooms for a dollar and rooms for five dollars. The quality of the article advertised tells the story. Then, and only then, is low price an added inducement. Quality—Economy—Service, with quality always first, is our aim.
